

FIGHTING RESUMED TODAY
IN THE ARGONNE DISTRICTDESPERATE ENCOUNTERS RE-PORTED ON THE WESTERN BATTLE FRONT.

RUSSIANS IN RETREAT

According to Reports From Western Poland This Morning—Fighting
in Carpathian Mountains
Not Decided.Heavy fighting is in progress once more in the Argonne and the Vosges
which have now become the most bitterly contested sections of the western battle front. Otherwise the opposing armies in that war theatre are virtually at a standstill.An event of immediate importance in the east is the German victory in East Prussia, which, according to Berlin reports, was an imposing one. It is assumed in Germany that danger of a Russian invasion in that region is now at a minimum.The persistence of the German attack in the Argonne has gained further ground today as the British and French positions are said to have been won. There has been further fighting in the Vosges and the Berlin official report states that all attacks of the allies were repulsed."Regrettable damage to the civil population" was caused, it is said in Berlin, by the British aeroplane raid over Belgium.Berlin is already celebrating the striking victories said to have been won over the Russians in East Prussia. It is stated today that in northeast Poland, as well as in east Prussia,
the Germans have been uniformly successful.

London, Feb. 13.—The retirement of the Russian forces in East Prussia and the great German advance today as the best factors in the military situation.
On the other hand, the diplomatic field would seem to be dominated by the American note to Great Britain and Germany, especially to Germany,
where the newspapers and the public
according to news dispatches reaching here from Berlin are insisting in spite of possible concessions, that the German submarine policy must be pursued relentlessly.The gist of German opinion, that has been thus far transmitted to London,
would appear to be that neutral powers have been sufficiently warned to keep out of the military area and interfere with the hands of Great Britain
there is no other course for her to pursue.As in other important encounters in the eastern arena of the war, the beginning of the opponents disagree as to the strategic importance of the German advance into East Prussia.
The Germans are calling it a great victory, while Petrograd declares that the Russians are deliberately re-aligning their forces.Battling in the Carpathians is going on in the snow, but indications reaching London are that it is still a searing affair. Further to the south the Austrians contend that they are containing their advance into Bukovina.
The fact that a British air raid in such force as was evidenced in the past few days, has been carried out successfully over the German positions in Belgium, is taken in London to indicate that such aerial operations against the German submarine base is promised at the time when the German policy of blockade was announced, is to be continued.Several British ship-owners are offering prizes of $5,000 of any merchant ship which rams and sinks a German submarine.Emperor William is reported still on the East Prussian front, but Emperor Nicholas has just made a visit to Brest-Litovsk where he is inspecting Russian warships.

To Capture Warsaw.

London, Feb. 13.—Emperor William received Field Marshal Von Hindenburg on the eastern battle front today, and it was decided to make a determined dash for Warsaw next week,
according to a dispatch from Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph company.The German emperor, the message adds, is said to be anxious that thePolish capital be taken before the meeting of the Reichstag in order to induce the house to vote a new war loan without opposition.French Views.
Paris, Feb. 13.—The French war office this afternoon issued a report of the progress of the fighting, which reads as follows:"From the sea to the Lys, the Germans yesterday bombarded violently
Nieuport and the countries of the Dunes. Their artillery fired on Ypres during the night of Feb. 11 and 12
and on our positions to the east of Ypres during the day of February 12.
Our artillery replied to this fire effectively.""From the Lys to the Somme, the Germans yesterday bombarded violently
the region of Arras. Near Carency we captured two mines situated at outposts held by the enemy.""Some ten aviators have flown over the region of Verdun. The bombs thrown by them did no damage."Claim Russian Advances.
Geneva, Feb. 13.—The Russians have resumed the battle of "Dukla
pass, fighting mostly with the bayonet,
according to late advices received here. During the struggle the Austrians are reported to have lost 8,000
in killed and wounded and 1,000 prisoners. They have been driven back as far as Zboroz, where the conflict continues, the snow having stopped falling."ENGLISH PROMPTED

GERMANY DECLARES

Action of Holding U. S. Food Ship
Makes Retaliation Necessary

on Part of Kaiser.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Feb. 13.—Count Bernstorff, the German ambassador, dismissed with Secretary Bryan today
the American note to Germany, designed to civilians in Germany, is held by British authorities at Falmouth. The ambassador reiterated, it was learned, that the attempt which he declared Great Britain was making to starve the civilian population of his country by preventing the foodstuffs from entering Germany would have to be met in retaliation by Germany's attempt to cut off commerce with the British Isles. In that connection the ambassador reiterated on behalf of his government that binding
many that none of the foodstuffs imported would be used by the army or for other military purposes and that such assurances should be accepted by this government and used as the basis in considering the blockade case. The ambassador made it plain that until the prize court had acted in the Wilhelm case there would be a change in the attitude of his government.

TWO ENGLISH SHIPS

Havre, Feb. 13.—Shipping circles
here now consider it practically certain that the British steamers Oriole and London Trader have been torpedoed by German submarines. A telegram from Rouen says James Cullen, a survivor of the London Trader, landed there by the steamer Poland.
Three others of the crew were saved.

ON RETURNING TRIP

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Liverpool, Feb. 13.—The Cunard
liner Lusitania, the vessel which flew the American flag across the Irish sea on a last trip in a measure of protection against German submarines, sailed from Liverpool for New York at her usual hour today under the British flag. Whether or not this embellish will still be flying when the Lusitania reaches the Irish Sea was a question to which the keenly interested passengers, found it impossible to obtain an answer.The Lusitania carried a large list of passengers including many Americans.

NEW ZEALAND PRESENTS FINE BATTLESHIP TO MOTHER COUNTRY

The battleship New Zealand has just been presented to the British navy as a gift from the people of New Zealand. The vessel was visited on February 5 by King George and members of the naval staff. The gift, the money for which was raised by popular subscription, is an indication of the unity which pervades the entire British empire.

Battleship New Zealand

TURCOS, FRENCHMEN, JEWS, ENGLISHMEN, BELGIANS, INDIANS, RUSSIANS IN PRISON CAMP FOR OPPOSING GERMAN "KULTUR"This highly interesting picture, taken in one of the detention camps in central Germany, shows prisoners from almost every nation and race that is set against the Germans. From reports that leak out of Germany it appears that the allies do not get along as they do on the field of battle. In one of the camps several Frenchmen protested to the commander in charge that they could not stand the habits of their Russian brethren in arms. The German commander sent back the reply that "If they were good enough to fight with, they must be good enough to live with." The picture here shows among others a Turk, two Frenchmen, a Russian Jew, an English sergeant, a Belgian infantryman, a French Turco, a Hindu and a Russian Cossack.ANXIOUSLY AWAIT ANSWERS TO NOTESReplies From England and Germany to the Ultimatum Sent Not Received Yet.Berlin, Feb. 13.—The text of the American note has not yet been made known to the German press and the comment up to the present time has been based entirely on news agency dispatches from Washington, giving a brief synopsis of the communication.
The Koelnische Zeitung has republished prominently from the Tages-Zeitung an article by Count Von Reventlow, the naval critic, concerning Germany's declaration of a marine war zone around the British Isles. In this article Count Von Reventlow refers to the report that the Washington government intended to ask how Germany proposed to make neutral shipping safe in these waters, and says:
"This marine war zone was announced by the German government for the very reason that safety of navigation therein cannot be guaranteed.
The vessels of neutrals entering upon
this war zone only at their own risk.
This condition of affairs and the consequences it may bring after February 13 cannot be changed or induced from any representations or demands from Washington. It is equally out of the question that the identity of every ship with a neutral flag be ascertained."Drunk Addicted Man Gets Woman in Cellar on Pretext She Can Help
in Fixing Furnace.Green Bay, Feb. 13.—On a pretext that she could help him repair a pipe
in the furnace, Albert Holt last night lured his wife to the basement of their home and then set about to deliberately murder her, according to the woman's story.As Holt first struck his wife with a heavy mallet, he knocked her to the floor. He then struck her several times over the head, but she was able to get up and ran upstairs. She made an attempt at the time to leave the residence, and a doctor was summoned to attend numerous cuts on her head. The physician who came, induced Holt to accompany him to his automobile to the police station,
where he was turned over to the officers.A warrant charging Holt with assault with attempt to murder was obtained from the municipal court.
He is held in jail.Mrs. Holt told the police that Holt was addicted to the drink habit, but that he was not intoxicated yesterday when he returned home.PRESIDENT DOWLING

Kansas City, Feb. 13.—Rev. Father
Martin P. Dowling, 64, former president of Creighton College, Omaha, and one of the leading Jesuit educators in the United States, died here today.Father Dowling had been suffering from a disease of the stomach for some time. He came here several years ago from Omaha to become pastor of St. Aloysius church, a large Catholic parish. Under his direction as a result of his efforts, Rockhurst College, a Jesuit institution, was built in Kansas City.A brother, Rev. Father James Dow-

PALS OF BURGLARGirl Wife of 19 Today Confesses To Working With Husband and Im-places Her Sister.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Green Bay, Feb. 13.—After confessing to District Attorney Davis last night to committing several burglaries
in this city, John Loring, 31, pleaded guilty of burglary in municipal court
this morning, and was sentenced to term of ten years at Waupun. Loring admitted breaking into three houses,
three saloons and a drug store.
Immediately after he entered his plea, the man's wife, a girl of 19,
entered a plea of guilty, to being in the drug store robbery and was sentenced to three years. Both Loring and his wife implicated Ruth Goldman, Mrs.
Loring's sister, in three house breaking jobs, but the girl insists she is not guilty. Her preliminary examination was set for Monday.LAKE FOG CAUSES
FISH TUGS' CRASHBoats Collide This Morning at Shebo-
gan in Heavy Mist Which Hovers Over Harbor.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Sheboygan, Wis., Feb. 13.—Considerable damage was caused this morning to the fishing tug Annie D. when it collided with the fishing tug Drower
at the mouth of Sheboygan harbor.
The heavy fog being given as the cause.
Her bow was smashed and considerable water poured into her hold as she steamed into port. The Drower was rammed in the side, but being heavier of the two boats, escaped
further damage.The accident occurred as the Annie D. was leaving the harbor behind the Elizabeth C. Crohn in the company of breaking her way through the ice and opening the way for the Annie D. Just as the mouth of the river, the Drower heading into the harbor, out across behind the Elizabeth C. On account of the heavy fog the captain did not see the boat following until it was too late.STATE TELEPHONE ASSN.
ADJOURNS AFTER ELECTING BOWLER AND COLE OVER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 13.—The Wisconsin state telephone association adjourned after electing E. H. Bowler of Sheboygan and F. H. Cole of Ashland to succeed themselves as directors. The third member is F. H.
Runkel, Portage, hold-over. They will meet at Crohn in two weeks to select officers. The association will be represented at the interstate telephone commission's hearing at Washington, March 4, on classification of telephone companies and accounting. The legislative committee was instructed to further legislation
to give the state railroad commission jurisdiction over construction where there is interference on the part of high tension power lines.COOK COUNTY HANGINGS

AT SIBERIAN CAMPSSpanish Ambassador Gives Account of Russians Treated Civil Prisoners Who Have Been Deported.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Vienna, Feb. 13.—Baron Spiegelfeld, the president of the official information bureau concerning the treatment of Austro-Hungarian civilians in hostile countries, has gone on record against Russia's treatment of such prisoners. Referring to a statement made by the Spanish ambassador in Vienna after the latter's inspection of all prisoner camps in the dual monarchy, which the Spanish
ambassador described as satisfactory, Baron Spiegelfeld said:"The correctness of the ambassador's utterances is fully confirmed by the letters written by our prisoners of war and especially by the Russians among us. Their letters all are subjected to most censorious, so I can speak from first hand knowledge.
I also speak from experience when I mention thousands of letters which I am sorry to say, only by our Russian prisoners—I mean letters concerning the wretched treatment of Austrian and Hungarian civil prisoners who resided in Russia before the war and who are now deprived of all necessaries of life, as well as of their homes and of their freedom. These unfortunates have been deported to Siberia and are now exposed to the fate in the dreariest and coldest parts of northern Siberia. They receive nothing from the government, neither shelter nor food, and are entirely left to the good will of some charitable people.""One of our consuls, Mr. Hoffinger, who, contrary to all conventions, was deported to Siberia immediately after the outbreak of the war, has confirmed these reports. He has told me of many instances where our poor compatriots were wandering in the wilds of Siberia in search of berries and roots in order to keep body and soul together.""The fate of these poor people calls for action by our charitable institutions. Our foreign office has already approached the central governments with a request to urge the Russian authorities to relieve such unnecessary and unwarranted sufferings."SOUTHERN PACIFIC
KEEPS OCEAN LINERailroad, By Interstate Commerce Commission's Ruling, Permitted to Hold Marine.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Feb. 13.—The interstate commerce commission today authorized the Southern Pacific railroad company to retain control of the Pacific Mail Steamship company.
This was the first decision under the Panama Canal act, requiring railroads to give up competing steamship lines except where joint operation was found to be of public advantage.The decision of the commission is based largely on the railway's assurances that the steamship line proposes to give up its service from San Francisco to New York through the canal, because "such service might be considered to be in competition with the Southern Pacific Railroad and Water service via New Orleans."WILSON'S SON-IN-LAW

Today.—Boosts Wisconsin.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 13.—State Immigration commissioner P. G. Packer today issued a press bulletin entitled "Canadian Nonsense." It reads:
"You want a cozy home, a free life and sufficient income. You want education for your children and some pleasure for your wife, and you want independence. Your burden has been heavy and your farm hasn't paid.
You require a change, etc., etc.""So says Canada to the Wisconsin farmer. Such bunk many weeklies are forced to print because of contracting between Canada and publishing concerns which supply 'patent insides' for country newspapers. But this from the report of the Canadian government agent for Wisconsin to the Canadian superintendent of immigration at Ottawa is suggestive.""In the southern or older parts of Wisconsin I find less desire than formerly to move west. This is accounted for by the fact that dairying,
which is the chief business of this district, has been very profitable for the past two or three years and is getting better every year.""Getting better every year! We believe it is and the industry only recently started. And there's an empire
yet to be developed within the state.
The Wisconsin farmer, never was more prosperous and the prospect for future development never so bright as at this time."MADRID AROUSED AT

(By Bob Acres.)Madison, Wisconsin, February 13.—
You know a prophet is not appre-

being true, I am not going to make any forecasts on the possible outcome of legislation during the present session. Of course, I might say that this

PRESBYTERIAN BROTHERHOOD ENTERTAINMENT COURSE
SPEAKER IN LIGHT DISCOURSE LAST NIGHT.

PHILOSOPHY WAS GOOD

Abe Martin Type of Talk Taken by Audience in Brighter Vein—Oratory and Humor Please.

Parlette's Paradises.

The wire fence is no friend to the hired man, Adam. You old fool! Why didn't you keep it when you had it? Own it! That's the business of life.

Were you ever back to the place where you began? Was there a monument there? The tradition continues, but the part of the pancake is gone forever.

Some people are proud of their ancestors. I'm not. The play of the world is only my altered grocer's in Napoleon's chariot. A citizenship beats a kingship any day.

It's a world that can't laugh that goes to the asylum. Wealth is what you put in your hearts, not in your pockets. Say, I've got a gold mine—in sleeping ability.

Philosophy! Philosophy! You're a great thing on a full stomach.

Frank Parlette, philosopher, orator and humorist, appeared last evening at the Presbyterian church in the eighth number of the Presbyterian Brotherhood's entertainment course. As a philosopher, Parlette found favor in his audience. In his art of oratory, he won their hearts, while with his humor, quaint manner, and banished the shadows of his oratory and struck the lights in their joyful and laughing with his humor.

Parlette's philosophy was an ecstasy. His version of his own little Paradise, Parlette's Paradise, to be correct, kept the audience delighted throughout the evening, although at times he carried his side issues a little too far to cater to the younger people present. These boring periods with their silling sidekick, however, proved but brief breathing spaces for the joy of the audience. Parlette suddenly tread upon new ground with the result of the entire assemblage bursting into laughter with his humor.

Parlette said, "The world began with a Paradise, not two shaggy long-tailed monkeys. The Garden of Eden was all a waste of space for the beautiful birds of song and plumage, its verdure and tropical atmosphere. Adam owned this and owned the entire world, although he didn't have a cent in his pockets. Fact is, he didn't have any pockets.

"The new styles brought the pocket back in that northwest corner of the world where I was born. I always measured a man by the amount he had in his pockets and the size of his pockets. What he owned was what he had in his pocket. With Adam it was different.

Mr. Parlette, in earlier life, has been a newspaper man, reporter, telegraph editor and owner of his own little country printing plant. The knowledge of the tricks of character gained from first hand observation of how the other half lives stands him in good stead. Widely varied experience have broadened his view of life and to instill these views into the half before him is Parlette's work of life, as he says it.

Years ago he became broken in health. Doctors told him he had but a short while to live. Then he saw a Chicago specialist who told him he had a chance. He went back, went back, went back to the place where he was born. There was a monument there either. There were three counties covered with swamp, the same old black walnut stump in the front yard, which was later dug up and sold to be made into a veneer, the old cabin with one layer of logs and a layer of air and a layer of logs and another layer of air and the Broadhead game, play tonight against the Cardinals. Telegrams went out to the players, who were to arrive this afternoon and the Cardinals.

The Broadhead game was but the second defeat of the season suffered by the Chicago five this season. With Churchill and Love in the Cardinals game, the Chicago aggression expect a victory over the Cardinals. The Cardinals are expected to arrive this afternoon and the Cardinals.

Did you know that if you find an article of value on a public highway you are obliged by law to advertise it? Here is the law covering the situation:

"Section 1615—Every finder of lost goods of the value of $10 or more, shall within fifteen days after finding the same, cause notice thereof to be published in a newspaper printed in the county, if there be any published therein. Section 1618—If any finder of lost money or goods of the value of $3 or upwards shall neglect to give notice of the same and otherwise to comply with the provisions of this chapter, he shall be liable for the full value of the money or goods so found to the person who shall sue for the same, and shall also be responsible to the owner for such lost money or goods."

The rate of advertising in the Gazette is 10 per word per insertion. When cash accompanies order a discount of 25 per cent is made.

could only come to life today and see what I see. What do I see? A million Ford cars.

Everybody's working for me. I get up in the morning and say, "Slaves, slaves, what did the world do yesterday? And they answer, Did you ever think what a slave the newspaper is? It's working now. The wire fence over head, under the ocean and all about are hot with answers for you of men and things and armies. Tricking through at a dollar to tell you word, it comes to me in the morning and swears my query, "What did the world do yesterday?"

I am well now and in robust health. I know the joys of living. You should know them too for in this age, and under the Stars and Stripes, you can thank God for civilization, good health and a free country."

POLICE GIVEN LIST OF STOLEN JEWELRY

Chief Champlin Makes Further Inquiries from Freeport Police Regarding Albert Ray.

Chief of Police P. D. Champlin received further information this morning from William Root, chief at Freeport, Me., regarding Albert Ray, who has been bound over to the March term of the circuit court under one of the charges of burglary and larceny. Chief Champlin early this week made inquiries regarding Ray from the Davenport, Iowa police, who captured the alleged burglar.

Ray, according to Chief Root, was a walking jewelry store who carried a large amount of jewelry and watches and jewelry to start a good-sized establishment. Some of the valuable have been identified and a complete description of the lost has been furnished the Janesville police.

The day previous to the McNamara store robbery here, patrolman Thompson searched a small jewelry store, who gave his name as Albert Ray. A day after the robbery Ray was taken into custody and questioned, but there was no evidence that he was guilty of any commission of the burglary. The Freeport chief said in his communication to Champlin that Ray refused to talk and would not admit that he was ever in Janesville. The list of jewelry found on Ray, which has not been identified, was given to the Janesville police as follows: Gent's watch, gold hunting case watch, Illinois make, movement No. 1451100, one large gentleman's gold watch, hunting case, Elgin make, back, movement No. 455457 with inscription "From Frank Parlette, March 15th, 1894," one small open faced gold wrist watch, with gold hands, Swiss movement with colored flowers on back; man's gold hunting case watch, Elgin make, movement No. 338324; lady's gold watch, two birds on case with the word "Cinda." Another lady's gold watch, Waltham make, No. 7434, lady's hunting case watch, No. 10500875, gold watch, neck chain with slide, pearl and garnet settings; lady's gold watch with large clear diamonds on back of case and name "Cinda" on the case. The description of six other watches were listed, together with a various assortment of stickpins, brooches and chains.

It is claimed Ray is one of the most notorious sneak thieves in the country and it is known that he has been in the vicinity of Janesville about the time of the house robberies. It is barely possible that Ray would have been able to do this, as he was seen if he robbed the several Janesville homes and the McNamara store, before he was caught at Davenport. Values stolen from Rockford homes shortly after the crime were found on Ray and have been identified by the owners. It is expected Chief Champlin will go to Freeport when a trial is set, if there is any evidence that he stole any valuables here.

WEAK MARKET TODAY IN CHICAGO CATTLE

Receipts Total But 300—Sheep Arrivals of 4,000 Make Market Steady in Line.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Today's cattle market opened weak with receipts of 300. Texas steers were quoted at $5.55 and $5.70, while westerns were at $4.85 and $7.35. Hog receipts were 15,000 with a general market of $6.75. Sheep arrivals totaled 4,000 with a steady market and a run from $6.25 to $9.

Cattle—Receipts 300; market steady; native 1.25@1.70; western steers 4.85@5.70; cows and heifers 3.25@7.75; calves 5.00@10.25.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—There was another sharp upturn in hog values yesterday, the average standing 19c higher than Friday and the highest since Monday. The best sold at $6.90 and were within 24c of the week's top, 20c lower than a week ago, while $1.80 lower than a year ago.

Eleven markets received 55,000 less swine than a week ago. Chicago's total at 22,000 was only about half as large as the previous Friday. Shippers took a third of the total, which was the strengthening feature.

After a hard fight to hold the price range down, packers bought lambs at unevenly higher figures yesterday. Values, however, are 75c below the high time this month and 15@20c lower than thirty days ago.

Receipts for today are estimated at 300 cattle, 18,000 hogs and 1,000 sheep, against 581 cattle, 34,031 hogs and 1,454 sheep a week ago and 174 cattle, 4,852 hogs and 2,300 sheep corresponding Saturday a year ago. Average price of hogs at Chicago was $6.80, against $6.81 Thursday, $7.00 a week ago, $6.81 a month ago, $6.50 a year ago, $3.13 two years ago and $6.13 three years ago.

Hogs Advance Sharply.

Shippers and speculators again made gains in yesterday's hog market and packers had nothing to do but follow the advance, some selling 30c above low time Thursday. Omaha markets were all lightly supplied, and in sympathy with Chicago, made sharp gains. Packing droves here averaging 215@238 lbs. cost $6.75@6.85. Quality good. Quotations follow:

Bulk of sales $6.75@6.85.

Heavy butchers and ship 6.70@6.90.

Light butchers, 190@230 6.75@6.90.

Light bacon, 145@190 lbs 6.65@6.90.

Heavy packing, 260@400 6.60@6.85.

Mid packing, 200@250 6.00@6.80.

Rough, heavy packing 6.40@6.65.

Poor to best pigs, 60@135 5.50@6.80.

Stags, 80 lbs. dockage per head 5.85@6.50.

Reaction in Lamb Prices.

Unwillingness featured yesterday's lamb trade, with the top 35c higher than Thursday at $8.65 and the average 20c higher at $8.35. Prices at 40@50c lower than Monday and that much below a week ago. Hardly enough sheep are coming to establish quotations. Day's receipts at 9,000 included 3,700 direct to packers, near-

BOARD MAY REGULATE ARENA SPORT IN PENN.

Bill Introduced in Pennsylvania Legislature to Legalize Boxing as in New York State.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 13.—Boxing interests will exert every effort to kill in committee the bill introduced by Representative S. J. Perry of Philadelphia, authorizing the establishment in Pennsylvania of a commission to supervise the boxing sport. The measure, which resembles the New York statute, has aroused no enthusiasm in the breasts of fight promoters, chiefly because it would give the state five per cent of the gate receipts.

The commission of five members, each to receive $1,000 per year, be appointed by the governor, for a two year term, and to be known as the Commission of Pennsylvania. It shall have exclusive jurisdiction over all boxing and sparring matches or exhibitions. The bill would permit ten round bouts, and the use of eight ounce gloves. At present, fights are limited to six rounds.

Every boxing pavilion would have to be operated under a license issued by the commission, which are to be available in all instances where the management does not file within forty-eight hours, an affidavit, as to the gross receipts of any match, and turn over five per cent to the state.

Participants in sham bouts may be prohibited from entering a ring for six months on first offense. The second offense totally disqualifies any boxer from fighting in Pennsylvania.

Violation of any of the provisions of the act, is punishable, upon conviction, by a $100 fine.

The measure asks $15,000 to carry the law into effect. A secretary to the commission.

MORRIS MILLER

Thomas Thorndike, a member of the Chicago Yacht club, is arranging for a unique trip next summer, which will carry the colors of the Chicago club over a voyage of approximately 10,000 miles. His yacht, the Floryn, built in Nova Scotia eight years ago, and taken to Chicago in 1913 through the lake and river route by the late George S. Starnes, has been out of commission for over a year, but her new owner proposes to get a lot of sport out of the 135-foot craft, equipped with its 150-horsepower engine and its 24-foot beam, furnishing accommodations for a large seagoing party.

Professional boxers as a rule have one ambition in life, and that is to become champion of their respective class. That is the one thought they have in mind from the time they don the first pair of boxing gloves. But such is not the case with Joe Shugrue, New Jersey's sensational lightweight. Unlike other stars of the sport, who have accumulated fortunes in the ring, Shugrue's aim in life is to become a successful number of the bar; to practice law after he retires from the boxing game.

Manager Schiappa of the Buffeds is not satisfied with his outfield, Jack Dalton being the only one of real big league caliber. The others are McDonald, good hitter, but weak fielding; Clyde Engle, who is a better infielder than outfielder; Hanford, who has lost his home run reputation.

There will be no hitch regarding the Jack Johnson-Jess Willard bout so far as the Mexicans are concerned. Apollito Villa and his more noted brother Gen. Francisco Villa, have sent letters to the promoters about assuring them that the bout will not be interrupted in the slightest manner. General Villa's letter says in part: "It gives me pleasure to guarantee you all the protection that you may desire and to assure you of a hearty co-operation of the officials and citizens of Juarez. You will not feel whatever is asked to pay any fees whatever to any civil or military for this concession."

Kansas City is not to have a Federal league game after all, according to latest reports, and it is said Cleveland isn't to get the K. C. team either. Pat Powers, minor league sport promoter, has announced that the K. C. franchise is his property and that he figures on moving the club east. George Stovall's team probably will play at Newark this year.

The American league again has legislated against the emery ball. The every advance in science meets resistance. Since the beginning of baseball every legislation, practical, affecting the actual playing, has been a move to handicap the pitcher. The league has increased the distance, passed stringent rules, handicapped him in position, forbidden him to take a preliminary step and now they forbid him to use the emery ball. The same legislation has been proposed against the spit ball, but not carried out. Such legislation is not worth much. The players soon learn to evade the rules. If they do not the batters soon learn to hit the new style of ball fairly well. The trouble is that the pitchers always lead in inventiveness. More attention to learning to bat would do more good.

Manager "Muggsy" McGraw has had more fights and won fewer than any player in the game. One of the funniest happened on the Baltimore grounds. Since McGraw was unprincipled and he put McGraw off the field. Mac told the umpire he would get him after the game. Leaving the grounds, the players passed under the stand, crossed a bridge over a small stream and reached the clubhouse. After the game McGraw was waiting at the bridge. "I've a notion to punch your nose," he said. Swartwood, a big, good-natured fellow, laughed and stuck his face toward McGraw, remarking, "Here it is." "Bam" went McGraw's fist plump on the nose. Swartwood leaped for him, drew him into the creek and went down on top of him in the water with the other players roaring with laughter.

INDOOR TRACK MEET AND CONVENTION AT GEORGETOWN

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Washington, Feb. 13.—The Georgetown University track meet was held this afternoon in the convention hall. From appearances this afternoon nearly everyone of the 3,000 who received invitations attended. Many high government officials were in the delegation which gathered at the university to mark the inauguration of a movement to have laymen assist in managing the institution formerly in the hands of Jesuits.

CONG FIVE WINNERS IN EXCITING GAME; PRESBYTERIANS WIN

Champs of League Score Eight Long Shots That Bring Victory—Methodists Full of Scrap.

Before an attendance numbering about four hundred church league shooters, the Presbyterian and Methodist teams tossed down the Methodists in an exciting battle last evening at the high school gymnasium, the final count being 24 to 14. The score does not indicate the unevenness of the game, for the game was played, despite the unevenness of the teams, with the winners. The Methodists were on the job and were always breaking up team work when necessary. The Presbyterian team to the Methodist five was too great a blow, and the Methodists led 14 to 0 at the end of the first half. It is known that had the Cong. players, especially Brown and Taylor, not been quite as accurate and lucky on many of their shots, that the game would have been a neck-and-neck battle. Brown failed to touch the ring five times out of his six shots, while Taylor scored four times, three of his eight being of the same style, the middle of the floor. Many of the spectators after the game stated that the Methodists were outlucked in many ways, but that the officiating was not wholly satisfactory.

Williams, captain of the Methodists, was the mainstay on floor work for his team, and Falter at Center displayed unusual ability against Brown, and Davidson while Craig scored three over Brownell. Craig scored the end of the first half was 12 to 7, and in the second half the Cong. team led 14 to 0. Next Friday night, preliminary to the high school game, the Methodists and Catholics will clash in their last game of the year. The Methodists will be strengthened by Platten, the 170 pound guard, and Bear at the center. The score of the Cong.-Methodist game follows: Methodists—Noyes, 15; Craig, 11; Williams, 17; Lester Falter, 1; Brownell, 1; Lane and Davidson, 1; Congregationalists—Leo, 1; Craig, 1; Field Goals—Brown, 1; Taylor, 4; Craig, 3; Noyes, 3; Falter, 1; Brownell, 1.

Free Throws—Noyes 2, Williams 2. Referee—George Sennett, Jansville. Time of Halves—20 minutes. Presbyterians Triumph. The second contest of the evening was an unusually slow battle, the Presbyterians winning their third straight game, this time the Baptists being the losers by a score of 15 to 7. Capt. McVicar of the winners was the chief scorer and played a good game. The Baptists were in poor form, slow in getting the ball down under their own basket being their weakest point.

The Presbyterians should give the Congregationalists a hard battle in the championship contest that will come in two weeks. If they can hold Brown down, there will not be much chance of giving the game to last year's champs. The Cong five are unquestionably the best team in the league from the teamwork standpoint, for they have played together all season, with practically no break in the team. The lineup of the Presbyterian-Baptist game follows:

Presbyterians—Jones, 1; McVicar, 1; McCulloch, 1; Bennett, 1; Lovry, 1; Baptists—Pond, 1; Eller, 1; Dennett, 1; Badger, 1; Capt. Drew, 1; Field Goals—McVicar 5, McCulloch 1, Bennett 1, Dennett 1, Badger 2. Free Throws—McVicar 1, Eller 1. Referee—Sennett.

HIGH TOSSERS LOSE TO EVANSVILLE BUT ARE STILL IN RACE

Game Will Not Count As Official Was Not a Neutral Man—Final Score 19 to 11—Stewart Stars.

The slippery floor at Evansville proved too much for the Jansville high school tossers last evening in their game with the Cut-off City five, and consequently the final score was against the locals, by 19 to 11. It was a case of sliding to the basket instead of running, for the locals, while the Evansville quint was used to the bottom, and was able to keep their feet very handily.

There was feature playing on both sides, Jansville looming up at times as real contenders for the southern state title. Evansville played a great game and are a great team, but it is believed they could not have displayed their full strength had the game been played at the local gymnasium.

Jansville players are still in the race, Jansville as there was not a neutral man officiating at the game, it is believed that the Lawrence college authorities demand that college players be given another chance at playing Evansville, since Bert Holmes, of Evansville, officiated last night.

Leslie Stewart, left guard on the Jansville five was the Bower City star, although Dearborn played stellar ball all the way, holding Jones, a star man to the one lone goal. Stewart was able to count three goals from the field. His guarding was excellent, his man Cain being held out, but he played his usual good game, and contributed one goal to Jansville's score. Durner, the Evansville center, was fortunate in securing six baskets out of ten. Two of these goals were tossed in from the jump over other Jansville players than him. Wierick played in the last two minutes.

For the first seven minutes, the score stood 1 to 0 in favor of Evansville. The first half ended 9 to 4 score follows: Jansville—Richards, 1; Capt. Stickney, 1; Wierick, 1; R. f. Raw, 1; Stewart, 1; Dearborn, 1; Jones, 1; Evansville—Jones, 1; Cain, 1; R. f. Durner, 1; Adams, 1; Richards, 1; Durner, 6; Adams, 2; Jones, 1. Free Throws—Stickney, 3; Adams, 1.

Ray Bronson to Stage Comeback; Thinks He's Best Welter in Game

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 13.—After Ray Bronson of Indianapolis claimed the welterweight title two years ago and posted his money to defend it, he was recognized by many as the champion. Ray made his trip to Australia with Milburn Saylor, the lightweight, and while in the antipodes lost in a battle for the title to Matt Wells, the English welterweight and former lightweight champion. Then Ray retired from the ring, and while Johnny Summers and Matt Wells disputed about a try-out, and will then be ready for the rest of the bunch.

Jack Britton also buried in, but as Jack was sticking to the lightweight, his claim in the welter division was not given serious consideration. Graves and Glover had several meetings and these seemed to favor the Kid, the latter posting $1,000 to defend his title against all comers.

It was assumed that Bronson had retired from the ring for good; but now comes Ray with a statement that he has decided to make a real comeback and defend the championship, which he considers still belongs to him. Say he:

CORRI TO REFEREE BATTLE OF JUAREZ

INDOOR TRACK MEET AND CONVENTION AT GEORGETOWN

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Washington, Feb. 13.—The Georgetown University track meet was held this afternoon in the convention hall. From appearances this afternoon nearly everyone of the 3,000 who received invitations attended. Many high government officials were in the delegation which gathered at the university to mark the inauguration of a movement to have laymen assist in managing the institution formerly in the hands of Jesuits.

"The Standard of Value and Quality"

Here It Is—The Car You Have Been Waiting For

Don't these mean Quality?

THE Glenwood "Four-36" has the famous Paige Motor 4x5, 116-inch wheelbase; Gray & Davis lighting and starting system; Bosch magneto; silent chain drive; Stewart carburetor; multiple disc cork-inlet clutch; most effective modern lubricator; distinction and beauty of body-design; the Paige Prestige.

Perhaps you—like many other men—have said that you would not buy an automobile until the utmost in motoring could be had at an ultra popular price.

If so, here is the car—and here is the price. The Paige Glenwood "36" offers the utmost in motoring because it provides—a generous measure—every last feature which should be incorporated in a handsome, serviceable, dependable four-cylinder motor car.

No man could buy more than that—no man should be satisfied with less.

So, carefully examine the list of specifications which are printed here. Forget altogether, the matter of price and ask yourself if you have ever heard of better features in any car—at any price. Then, let the Paige Dealer show you what these features mean in actual demonstration. Also see the epoch-making Paige "Six-46"—$1135.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

Ah! what would the world be to us

If the children were no more?

We should dread the desert behind us

Worse than the dark before.

What the leaves are to the forest,

With light and air for food,

Ere their sweet and tender juices

Have been hardened into wood—

That to the world are children;

Through them it feels the glow

Of a brighter and sunnier climate

Than reaches the trunks below.

Ye are better than all the ballads

That ever were sung or said;

For ye are living poems,

And all the rest are dead.

—Longfellow.

This sentiment, so nicely expressed,

finds an echo in every heart which in any way appreciates the value of the child in the home—a value never computed in dollars and cents, for the child represents an asset so subtle that it brings to the parent joy and satisfaction which compensates for sacrifice and suffering, and transforms the home.

Society, of every degree, is composed of two classes of families. One, the close corporation, where the husband and wife are the only representatives; the other, the larger circle where the children come in to round out the group and make the family complete.

The childless home may be carefree, and as full of love as two people can make it. It may be a model of perfection, in all of its appointments, and its furnishings may be kept so spick and span, as to be the envy of the neighborhood.

When the child drops in, unexpectedly, there is never occasion for apology, for every thing is in its place. The furniture is never mended and never wears out. The orderliness is so complete that it sometimes becomes painful.

A half dozen good live boys turned loose for about ten minutes would create havoc like a bull in a china shop, and yet you somehow feel that the atmosphere would be improved if disturbed in some such way.

The childless home is not usually childless from choice, and no one realizes the loss more keenly than the wife who has been deprived of the sacred title, "mother," or the husband whose heart has never been warmed by the boy or girl who called him "daddy." These are the homes where orphans so often find refuge, and where the wealth of love bestowed causes the little waifs to forget their loss.

The ideal home is the home where children abound. Not the one child, for the life of the solitary child, in any home, is abnormal and development is so one-sided that the finished product is usually disappointing.

The "good" boys and girls can generally be traced to this class of homes. They have missed out of life the rough and tumble experience, the give and take proposition, so necessary to well-rounded development, a loss from which it is difficult to recover.

The ideal family is large enough to tax the faculties of heart and mind, and the sacrifice demanded is so wholesome and unselfish that favoritism is unknown. The last little stranger added to the group, the mother feels that her cup of care is full, soon wins a welcome, for the baby hands which caress the tired face, and the smile of greeting, which responds to the dawn of recognition, are potent appeals to the mother's heart, and response is spontaneous.

A time ago, a home which had been blessed with half a dozen children, was confronted with the perplexing problem of entertainment. This was before the days of the "movies" and the "tango," and what to do with the youngsters evenings was the question.

An effort was made to make the home so attractive that the young people would be satisfied to stay at home and entertain their friends evenings. What they did, their furniture and carpets, when the house became a playhouse, is hardly worth recording. And how much they shocked the sedate neighbors and the church will never be known, but the children, now in middle life, speak for themselves.

Next to the childless home, in point of sympathy, are the deserted homes, where the children have left the nest, and gone out to seek their fortunes and establish homes for themselves. While this is natural and right, and just as it should be, the fact remains that the old home feels the loss very keenly, and the father and mother spend much time in the past, calling back the memory of happier years when the family was together.

The girl who stands at the altar, a happy bride, seldom thinks of heart aches which come to the mother when she says "good-bye," realizing that the daughter's place in the old home will be forever vacant. The troubled face of her father does not disturb her, and but little thought or appreciation rewards the sacrifices which he has made for her development and happiness.

There is less sentiment about the boy, because he is expected to leave home, whether married or single, as soon as he is ready for active life, and yet his absence causes a vacancy which time never fills.

The father and mother at sixty, are back where they started thirty-five years before, and it is not surprising that the grand-children find a warm spot in their hearts, so close to the surface.

There are some problems connected with family life which are difficult to understand. Boys and girls grow up under the same roof, scrapping more or less, as children will. They leave home and scatter, and it often happens that in twenty years they are strangers.

The ties of blood, which we hear so much about, are sometimes slightly regarded. Two brothers, old men, died within the year. They had not spoken to each other for twenty-five years.

There is a good many other things that will guarantee a man long life and happiness besides writing love letters to another man's wife.

LONDON'S HOMELESS MAY HAVE SHELTER IN SUBWAYS IF THERE IS AN ATTACK

(Correspondence Associated Press).

London, Feb. 12.—Plans have been completed to permit London's vast floating population to find shelter in the underground railway tubes in the event of hostile attack. The city has hundreds of miles of subway, affording an ideal place of safety from bomb or shell fire.

The availability of the subways was first called to the attention of the authorities some weeks ago by an enterprising citizen. Since that time detailed arrangements have been made for the regulation of traffic of a raid comes. Special telephones have been installed throughout the system; all employees have been instructed just how to act, and everything has been organized to prevent panic. Women and children will receive preference, but all those who seek shelter may do so without purchasing a ticket.

In case of a prolonged attack it is suggested that subway traffic be suspended entirely and the system converted into a stronghold superior to the forts of feudal times.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED ON WATER WORKS CASE

CITY COUNCIL APPROVES OF AGREEMENT MADE BETWEEN CITY AND COMPANY ON BOND ISSUE.

ORDINANCE IS DRAFTED

Ordinance For Issuing of Eighty Thousand Dollars Worth of Bonds Bearing Five Per Cent Interest.

City Attorney W. H. Dougherty will present the ordinance providing for the issuing of eighty thousand dollars worth of negotiable municipal bonds bearing five per cent interest at the city council meeting which was called last afternoon. The ordinance was passed by the commission authorizing the ordinance and plans were perfected to the paying of $78,500 in cash at which time the transfer of the plant will be made. Under the agreement reached between the city and the water company, the city is to take over the difference between the value of the bonds and the value of the water company's plant amounting to $265,000. The outstanding bonds are due in 1927 and are callable in 1924 at a premium and the city bonds will be made to conform with them in the rate of interest.

Resolutions were passed by the city council yesterday afternoon at its adjourned meeting between the water company and the city, for the issuing of eighty thousand dollars worth of negotiable municipal bonds, bearing five per cent interest, to complete the taking over of the water company's plant on April 1st, this year. The stipulation of the agreement reached between the city and the water company, which was signed by the attorneys of the water company and approved by the state railroad commission, who have been furnished with a copy of the agreement.

This resolution introduced by Mayor Fathers and passed by the council was as follows: "Wherein certain proposals have been made to the city of Janesville under the date of February 11th, 1915, looking to a settlement of all the legal questions in relation to the bonds now outstanding on the property of the water company,

Whereas, it is considered that an adjustment of the legal questions is of advantage to the city; and

Whereas, the said proposition has been submitted to the city council and by a majority of the council is further resolved that the water company proposal be accepted and that the city attorney be authorized to enter into an agreement whereby the order of that body made on January 30th, 1915, may be modified accordingly.

This resolution was passed to empower City Attorney Dougherty to make the agreement with the water company whereby all legal difficulties in the way of city ownership would be adjusted. It is understood between the city and the company that the holders' suit, complaints for which have been filed, will be dismissed from the court at once. The only legal right that the company reserves is the right that the company has to the stipulation, is the right to appeal before the state supreme court, showing an error in the valuation of the company's property by the railroad commission. This appeal may be taken within ninety days after the handing down of the decision and would take the valuation proceedings of the railroad commission before the federal court. The city also reserves the right for an appeal, but the figures of $265,000 with the payment of the company's bonds has been declared acceptable to the commissioners.

The second resolution passed by the council was as follows: "Whereas, on the 12th day of May, 1914, was properly submitted to the voters of the city of Janesville the question of the purchase of the Janesville water works, and the questions was decided in the affirmative, and whereas the results of the election were such that the city is authorized to the railroad commission of Wisconsin, the time for the public hearing upon the matter of compensation to be paid for the water works and notice of hearing has been given as provided by law; and

"Whereas, such proceedings were thereafter had on the 30th day of January, 1915, the said railroad commission did render its final decision to be paid to the water works in the sum of $265,000, plus the additions mentioned in the order; and

"Whereas, the legal conditions precedent have been fully and carefully complied with,

Now therefore it is further resolved, that the city of Janesville does hereby determine that it is necessary to raise eighty thousand dollars for the issuance and sale of negotiable municipal bonds of the city to provide funds for the carrying out of the order of the railroad commission of Wisconsin in the matter of the purchase of the Janesville water works, and the said bonds shall be serial in number, shall pay interest at the rate of five per cent per annum, payable semi-annually and shall in all respects be issued under and in pursuance with Section 926-11 of the Wisconsin statutes for 1913.

City Attorney Dougherty declared at yesterday's meeting that the bond ordinance would be drawn up and the council adjourned for only one day so as to be able to act immediately on the ordinance to save time. The stipulation offered by Attorney Dougherty contains provisions whereby the city accepts the water company's plant on the first day of April subject to the outstanding bonds of $180,000 and that the city on April 1st pay to the company the difference between the sum of $265,000 and $180,000 with additions contained in the order of the railroad commission. The stipulation was entered into by the companies only for the purpose of avoiding a protracted litigation with reference to the bonds issued by the Janesville Water company, secured by a trust deed on its plant, and is not to be construed as affecting the right of the water company to a full and complete review of the law by the courts.

Under the stipulation the city will pay to the water company on April 1st the sum of $78,500 with such amount as is determined between the two parties for the material and supplies on the date that plant is taken over and the new additions to the plant that have been made since July, 1914. If the city and company fail to agree upon the price, the committee will value this additional property by a supplemental order.

After the business relating to the commission was passed by the city council, the council introduced the bonds and George W. Slightman for the position of plumbing inspector. These were approved by the council.

proved by the council. Mayor Fathers announced the appointment of John Dalton as special police officer without pay. The appointment was confirmed.

GERMANS GO TO FRONT WITH CHEER AND SONG

Teutons Go to Possible Death With a Light Heart Filled With Patriotism And With a Song on Their Lips.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Berlin, Feb. 12.—The enthusiasm, cheerfulness, good humor, patriotic feeling with which the German soldiers set out for war are described in the boyish letter of a student, who is in a small Prussian village, describing the departure of the capital. The following copy of the letter appears in the Tageblatt:

"It is evening, and I am on my way home from the university. There is a large crowd in the street, the barracks of the Alexander Guard Grenadier regiment. All traffic has been suspended. Several street cars, auto buses, autos, cabs and other vehicles are surrounded by a crowd of thousands of people.

"What's the matter? I ask and am told that a battalion is about to leave for the front.

"I have just worked my way forward to the edge of the sidewalk when the doors of the barracks opposite open, and with band playing, the field marching out, received by a cheer from the thousands of throats.

Everybody pushes forward and I am forced to make room. I am lost in watching the beautiful sight of helmet points, buttons and metal pieces of the guns sparkling in the light of the street lamps. How firm the step and how happy and frank the smiles with which they greet their friends!

"I do not see on a single face any expression of the sorrow, the parting must surely have cost each a happy, calm expression can be seen on every face, as if all were going to duty and pleasure instead of to stress and death.

"Miss i' denn, muss i' denn zum Stadte hinaus, plays the band, and every one joins in the song. Girls' hands give the last present to the departing soldier.

Old parents try to press forward to give their young the last words and glances with the most enthusiasm and strong conviction in their own strength are mirrored on the faces of the departing soldiers, self denial and courage hope in the features of their relatives.

At the sight the knowledge becomes stronger and stronger in me that, no matter what, for or against whom the German people may fight, they will and must win."

The Misses Nora and Nell Marshall and Lillian Hilder leave Sunday morning for a few days' visit with friends and relatives in Chicago.

Miss Maude Premo entertained the A. B. C. girls and a few other friends last evening at a Valentine party. During the evening game was played, after which a dainty luncheon was served.

Miss Theodora Dick is visiting relatives in Brodhead.

Copyright, 1913, by Emerson Hough

"Ida?"

"But how much?"

"Some five or six miles."

"Gee! That must be over a hundred acres. I didn't know anybody owned that much land. Where'd you get it?"

"In part from my father."

"What business was he in?"

"He was a pirate, Jimmy, or at least they said he was. But my mother was not. I will tell you," I added suddenly. "My father owned a great deal of timberland long ago and iron and oil and copper, when nobody cared much for them. They say now he stole some of them. I don't know. In those days people weren't so particular. The more he got the more he wanted. He never was a boy like you and me. He educated me as a lawyer so that I could take care of his business and his property, and he trained me in the pirate business the best he could, and I made money, too, all I wanted. You see, my father could never get enough, but I did, perhaps because my mother wasn't a pirate, you see. So when I got enough my father and mother both died, and when I began to see that maybe my father had taken a little more than our share I began trying to do something for people, but I can't think about that of course."

"Well, why not?" demanded Lafitte. "Go on."

"A fellow doesn't like to."

"But what did you do?"

"Very little. I found I could not do very much. I gave some buildings to schools, that sort of thing. No one thanked me much. A good many called me a Socialist."

"What's that—a Socialist?"

"I can't tell you. Nobody knows. But really, I suppose, a Socialist is a man born before the world got used to steam and electricity. Those things made a lot of changes, you see, and in the confusion some people didn't get quite as square a deal as they deserved, or at least they didn't think they had. It takes time, really, as I suppose, to settle down after any great change. It's like moving a house."

"What I like about you, Black Bart," resumed Lafitte, "is you seem always fair."

I flushed at this, suddenly, and pushed back my plate. "Jimmy," said I at last, "I would rather have heard that from you, than to hear I had made a million dollars from pearls or anything else. For that has always been my great hope and wish—that some day I could teach myself always to be fair—not to deceive anybody, most of all not myself, in short, to be fair. Brother, I thank you, if you really believe I have succeeded to some extent."

We later found our clammer, the young man and his crane of a mother, up betimes and hard at work, as evil looking a pair as ever I saw.

They had already roasted open and examined quite a heap of shells by the time we arrived, and I inquired, pleasantly, if they had found anything.

The man answered surly that they had not, but something made me feel suspicious, since they had made so early a start. I saw him now and then wipe his hands on his overalls, and several times noted that as he did to his middle finger projected down below the others, as though he were reaching for something inside his pocket, which lay in front, the overalls being made for a carpenter, with a narrow pocket devised for carrying a folded foretune. But I could see nothing suggested in the pocket.

"That's too bad," I said pleasantly. "It looks as though I were going to lose my hundred, doesn't it? Still, the day is long."

I busied myself in watching the deft work of the two as they opened the shells started by the heat, sweeping in the field contents and feeling in the swift motion of a thumb for any sign of secretion of the pearl. Nothing was found while I was watching, and I did not much like the odor I drew from the side.

"I think he's holding out on us!"

"Halt, villain! Throw up your hands or by heavens you die!"

possible to keep the diver from stealing pearls, just as it is hard to keep the Kaffirs from stealing the diamonds they find in the mines."

I still was looking at him closely, and now I said to him mildly and in a low tone of voice: "It would be of no use. I should only beat you again, and I would rather spare your mother, you see," I added in a louder tone of voice. "The natives put pearls in their hair, between their toes, in their mouths—although they do not chew tobacco as you do. One who merely put one in the pocket of his overalls, if he wore overalls, would be called very clumsy indeed, especially if he had been seen to do it."

Involuntarily he clapped a hand on his pocket. What would have been his next act I do not know, for at that moment I heard a voice call out sharply: "Halt, villain! Throw up your hands or by heavens you die!" Turning swiftly, I saw Lafitte, his pistol aimed in a very serviceable fashion at the heart of the clammer, about the same as when he first accosted me on my stream, glancing along the barrel with an ominous gray eye again gone three corners.

Before I could even cry out to him

his warning was effective. I saw my clam oyster go white and put his hands over his head, the while his mother ran screaming toward the tent, Jimmy L'Olonnois at her heels, sword in hand, and warning her not to get a gun, else her life's blood would dye the strand.

In a moment or two I restored peace. I held out my hand to the clammer. "I didn't know you seen me," said he simply and placed in my hand three pearls, either of them worth more than all I had paid him, and one of them the largest and best I had ever seen—it is the pearl famous as the "Belle Helene," the finest ever taken in fresh waters in America.

I looked at him quietly, and handed him back all but the one pearl. "I am sorry you were not a better sport," said I, "very sorry. Didn't I play fair with you?"

"No," said he. "Some folks have all the luck. You come along here, rich, with all sorts of things, and you'd rob a man like me out of what little he can make."

I was opening my wallet again. "I am sorry to hear you say that," said I, handing him two bills of a hundred dollars each. "Sorry, because it has cost you $2,800."

"Heavens, man, what do you mean?" he gasped, even his fingers slow to take both money and contempt.

"That the pearl is worth to me that much, since I have a purpose for it. I have more money than I want, and fewer pearls like this than I want. It would have given me the keenest sort of pleasure to give you and your mother a few thousand dollars, two or three, to set you up with a little launch and an outfit enough to give you a good start—and, perhaps, a good partner. You had a good chance, and like many another man who isn't good enough to deserve success you lost it. Do you know why you failed?"

"It's the luck," said he. "I never had none."

"No," said I. "It is not that. So far as luck goes, you are lucky you are alive. Little do you know our desperate band. Little do you know we have escaped the wrath of Lafitte, of L'Olonnois, of Black Bart. Luck! No, that is not why you failed."

"What then?" he demanded, still covetous, albeit rueful, too, at what he vaguely knew was lost opportunity.

"It was because you did not play the part of a clammer naturally and nobly," I replied. "My friend, I counsel you to read Epictetus, and while you are at that," I added, "I suggest you read also that other classic, the one known as 'The Pirate's Own Book.'"

A moment later the waves were rippling merrily along the sides of the Sea Rover as she headed out boldly into the high seas.

CHAPTER VI.

In Which I Show My True Colors.

HERE were many lesser adventures in which Lafitte, L'Olonnois and I shared on our voyage through the long waterways leading down to the great river, but of these I make small mention.

Two things grew on me in conviction—first, I loved Helena Emory more and more each day of my life, and second, that I must see her at the first moment possible in spite of all my resolutions to put her out of my life forever. And these two things being assured, when we saw the rolling yellowish flood of the Father of the Waters at last sweeping before us I realized that, bound as I was in honor to hold on with my faithful band, our craft, the Sea Rover—sixteen feet long she was and well equipped with long toms and deck carronades—would have no chance to overtake the Belle Helene, fastest yacht on the great lakes, which might, so far as I could tell, at that very moment be clearing through the Chicago canal to enter the great river hundreds of miles ahead of us.

Wherefore, leaving my bold mates in bivouac one day, I made journey to the nearest town. There I sent certain messages to anxious parents and left for them our probable itinerary as tourists traveling by private conveyance. I could not set our future dates and parts more closely together, for before I left town I had purchased a sturdy power boat of my own, capable of doing her ten or twelve miles under her own petrol. I was in no mind to fall farther and farther back of the Belle Helene each day, and I counted upon our piratical energy to keep us going more hours a day than Cal Davidson—curses on him!—would be apt to travel.

"This is a prize, our first capture," I explained to the boys. "And since she has struck her colors let us mount our own at her foremast and ship our band to a bigger and faster craft."

The late owner, who bore the name of Robinson, looked on much perplexed, and, I think, in some apprehension, for he must have thought us dangerous, whether sane or mad.

"Who'll run her?" he at length demanded of me, looking from me to my two associates. Then forth and stood Jean Lafitte and answered a question I confess I had not yet myself asked: "He! I guess a fellow who can run a gasoline pump in a creamery can handle one of them things. So think not, fellow, to escape us!"

I reassured Robinson, who was apparently ready to make a run for it, and I explained to Lafitte and L'Olonnois the plan.

"We'll by no means discard our true, the original Sea Rover," said I, "and we'll tow her along as our tender. But we'll christen the prize the Sea Rover instead and hoist our flag over her and paint on her name at the first point of call we make. Now, let us hasten, for 2,000 miles of sea lie before us, and Robinson is also five miles from home."

"You're in a hurry, Black Bart. What makes you?" And even L'Olonnois turned a searching gaze upon me.

"Well, I'll show you my true colors," said I. "I am more careless of taking treasure than of capturing a certain maiden who flees before us yonder on a swift craft, speedier than our own. Lay me alongside of her, this week, next month, this winter, and my share of the other booty shall be yours!"

"Black Bart," said Lafitte, "I knew something was sort of bothering you. So it's you for the fair captive, huh?"

We sped on now steadily, day by day, and ever arose in my soul new wonders at the joy of life itself, things that had escaped me in my plodding business life.

We came, I knew not after how many days forgotten in detail—after passing, each avoided as a pestilence, many cities prosperous in commerce—alongside the river port of the city of St. Louis, crowded with motley and mist shipping of one sort or other, where our craft might moor without fear of exciting any suspicion, in spite of our ominous name, for I had the precaution to lower our flag of the skull and crossbones.

I sought out the man most apt to know of any considerable vessels docking there and made inquiry for any power yacht 125 feet long, white and black ventilators, white hull with blue line, flying the burgee Belle Helene or some such name. None could advise me for a time, and I looked in vain, as I had in every dock in 800 miles, for the trim hull of my yacht. At last one old mariner in rubber boots, himself skipper of a houseboat south bound for a winter's trapping, admitted that he had seen such a craft three days before.

"Did she dock?" I demanded.

"Sure she did, and lay overnight. I remember it well enough, for I saw her tie up. And that evening her owner went ashore and uptown, and with him his bride, I reckon—handsomest girl in all the town. They must have been married, for he was looking like he owned her. That was, I remember, two days ago or maybe four. They came aboard her next morning, all three—there was a old party along; girl's mother likely—around 11 o'clock and in a little while cast off and went on down river. As fine a boat as ever made the river run—still as a mouse she was, but quick as a cat and around Sta. Genevieve, I reckon, before I got back to my own scow after helping them off here. No wonder her owner was proud. He stood on the quarter-deck like a lord. Why shouldn't he, owning a boat and a girl like that?"

"He doesn't own either?" I retorted hotly.

"Why, how do you know he don't?" demanded my seaguing man.

"Who should know if not myself?" "She! You talk like you owned her!" "I do own her!"

"It looks like it. Which do you mean—the yacht, or her the girl?"

Dinner Stories

A tourist in the mountains of Kentucky had dinner with a querulous old mountaineer who yawned about a stretch of fifteen minutes at a stretch. "Why, man," said the tourist, "you ought to be able to make lots of money shipping green corn to the northern markets. Yes, I order," was the sullen reply. "You have the land, I suppose, and can get the seed. Yes, I guess so." "Then why don't you go into the speculation?" "No use, stranger," sadly replied the cracker. "The old woman is too lazy to do the plowing and planting."

"Well, I've settled that there note I've been owing Jack Gap for so long!" triumphantly stated a prominent citizen of the Arkansas neighborhood of Rumpus Ridge. "That so?" returned another and equally prominent resident of the same locality. "Where'd you git the money?" "Aw, it didn't take no money! I just shot Gap."

THE BIGGEST FACTOR IN WISCONSIN PUBLICITY THE WISCONSIN DAILY LEAGUE

Every Day To More Than 110,000 Homes

There is no more potent force in the State of Wisconsin today than the 25 Daily Newspapers comprising the Wisconsin Daily League.

Its powers for business creation are several fold.

1st. It reaches more high grade families than any other publicity medium.

2nd. It offers its bureau of information about local conditions, representatives, stocks, etc., by personal touch—facts procurable in no other way.

3rd. It assists its customers to permanent business connections where it is practical to do so.

The elimination of extra expense, work and trouble in securing circulation data, in placing orders in paying for service is appreciated by advertisers generally. One order one check in payment to the secretary and Wisconsin is pretty well taken care of.

USHER IS OPPOSED TO REPEAL PROGRAM

MILWAUKEE CORRESPONDENT CRITICIZES TAXPAYERS' LEAGUE'S PROPOSAL.

CALLS IT IMPRACTICAL

Changes in Administration Should Not Be Dealt With Summarily, He Says—Even Favors Tax Commission.

(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, Feb. 12.—One of the most important developments of the week has been the demand of the "Taxpayers' League" for summary action against certain boards and commissions. It demands that the state tax commission be abolished, also the legislative reference library, the highway commission, and it proposes many other changes of a very sweeping nature, that is of the highest importance to deal with thoroughly, considerably, and conscientiously, rather than summarily. It cannot be charged with too much warmth for the system that the League would overthrow, but I am opposed to abolishing the tax commission, or the reference library, or even the highway commission, mischievous as I believe it to be until it is better understood than most people understand it.

Procedure Impracticable. My objection to the proposed summary procedure is that it is impracticable. I have, I believe, given as much attention and study to the existing conditions as most men who have been in the government, and I am opposed to the present procedure fundamentally, but I should want to examine all the pigeon-holes before I began to tear it up by the roots, and "should" want to foresee the results of an honest effort to make valuable changes. The very evident weakness of the leaders of the past fifteen years is that many of them have worked on a half-trimmed plan of legislation, and under practical tests developed that their laws accomplished many revolutions, and produced many complications that had not been in the least anticipated or desired. The tax commission was pointed out last week, there has been a band of socialist enthusiasts at work who have been far-sighted and have, as far as they could, elevated the hands of those who would undo their work.

To be more specific, the tax commission should not be abolished until it is understood that it is a better understanding it is arrived at, much of its machinery and authority may, it seems to me, be safely dispensed with. As I have said, I believe in the body to supply the people, the administration, and the legislature with clear and reliable statements as to the cost of government, and the proper manner in which to raise the money to pay costs, this commission has been of great value. One valid criticism against it, and a regrettable one, is that it has lost the confidence of the public. This is because its chairman has taken the stump in political campaigns, and Prof. Adams has been equally active in his writings, for purely factional political purposes. There are men to be had in Wisconsin who will not be suspected of promoting a political propaganda, from those positions. What has been said of this commission applies to my mind, with merely the same force, to the reference library, the highway commission, and much other and similar machinery of our far too complicated government.

Learning by Experience. One of the so-called "stalwart" element of the Republican party, at the beginning of the "Progressive" movement in this state, was that its leaders resorted chiefly to the use of the "stick" to their survivors, but by the time they fully recognized the cost of that policy, it helped La Follette to establish the young men, who always have the votes, to strip his enemies of support, it added sympathy. The senior senator and his supporters are now imitating the mistakes of their former antagonists. They are calling "for" the "young men" who are in larger numbers with the weaknesses of long power and patronage. Look over their names and they are all past middle life. From 1890 to 1900, and 1901 and compare its names with the official lists of today, and the story is a plain one. Time has done its work. Beyond this let the practical politician hope at a situation that shows neither party or individual party unity. The present administration was the response of a minority of the voters to a call for economy and common sense. The sentiment has grown since election, but the man who attempts to "play politics" or pursue self-aggrandizement, will land in the dump—and land hard. This state will not return to the things of 1900, for that generation is no longer doing the voting. Wise leadership is likely to develop among the young men, who now, and always, constitute the vast majority of the votes, and are all under 25 years of age. This may seem like a homely bit, but I want to see something done that is worth while, and I don't believe in going to it with an axe or bludgeon. We have had enough and to spare of that sort of politics and our misfortune, and the misfortune of Wisconsin.

Long Service on Bench. After seven years of valuable service on the circuit court bench of the First Judicial Circuit, on May 4th 1911, John B. Winslow was appointed, by Governor George W. Peck as associate justice of the supreme court of Wisconsin to succeed the late Justice Daniel Taylor. He became chief justice at the close of 1907, upon the death of Justice Cassidy. Therefore, he has served for 24 years upon the supreme bench, a service extended by but two of the 32 men who have served in our highest court since it was organized, and if he finishes his present term, he will equal Justice Cassidy, who served 24 years with only one less. Justice Winslow has served the state with a fidelity and ability that needs no encomiums to establish him in the respect of the people of Wisconsin. A man of unusual fitness for his high post, he combines in an exceptional degree the rare accompaniment of the learned jurist, the patriotic citizen, and the best type of American citizen, and the gentle graces of neighbor and friend. One does not need always to agree with Justice Winslow to have unquestioning faith in his high sense of public duty, as well as in his intellectual and moral integrity. His will be a candidate for re-election at the coming spring election and will, undoubtedly, be chosen without opposition.

General Agent Phett Returns. The general agent of the Erie Railroad for Wisconsin, Mr. Harvey Phett, has returned from the East where he had been on a last week for mutual exchange of business information. President Phett gave them a luncheon at the Traffic Club, and they had some fun mixed in with serious matters. Mr.

Phett later spent a few days at Washington. The first thing he said to me was, "I tell you, there is no better track between here and New York than the Erie's. It's in fine shape." He says that the New York terminal station and the yards are all of the railroads, and the yards are well, are getting filled up with grain and other export freight, and the problem is to get vessels to move it. He didn't think the Wisconsin for Mr. Wilson's shipping bill except among the Democratic politicians in Washington, notwithstanding the crying need of most vessels. To start with, nobody seems to know where the government, or anyone else can get ships, unless they are built. As a rule the import business is light and the railroads have had light business since the middle of January. They are all running shorter trains and more of them to keep their crews intact.

Commission's Report. The report of the whole amount of taxes for Wisconsin, state, corporate, income, municipal, and local, for last year, is $44,184. The aggregate will be larger, year after year, to this great Wisconsin burden must be added over $9,000,000 of United States "war" taxes, not to count the indirect taxes of the protective tariff which are estimated at something like $18.00 a head for our 2,500,000 population. It is conservative to say that the people of this state will this year, pay over $9,000,000 in direct taxes, which is an average of $24 a head for every man, woman and child in Wisconsin, and for the poor devil with five children, it means $163 in direct taxes, and, ultimately, he is the backhorse for the gentleman who is insisting on large appropriations will do well to look at the proposition from the taxpayer's end. If he wants to hold his job.

Every ball player in major league circles who has become a fan-dangled star has had his name exploited in one way or another. Some of them, like the late John L. Sullivan, have been good capitalists, and their names are good capital, and they and their exploiters have derived some momentary benefit from them. The risk of having this blue pencil, as it were, applied to the name of John L. Sullivan, credit for being the first ball player who has himself been known to have formed the John L. Sullivan Cigar Co., and the son, President Coffeyville, Kas. is now advertising for salesmen. Federal agents, who are the smoke and throb of battle, little Walter, a salesman will be circulating among us, selling unmentionables impartially, no matter which cause you support. MILTON HIGHS VICTORS OVER MONTICELLO TEAM.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milton, Feb. 12.—Milton High school won a well played game from Monticello at Milton last night by the score of 14 to 9.

The first half was very close and the watchers couldn't tell how the outcome would be.

Milton came back with a tying goal for Monticello.

But Milton exhibited a different style of playing in the second half. From the very first the home boys took things into their own hands, and scored 9 points before the visitors made any. Then the Monticello players spruced up and almost completely were swamped by a shower of baskets by Milton. The whole game was clean and interesting.

In one of the fastest and cleanest games of basketball ever seen on the college floor, Milton College suffered a defeat at the hands of Milton Normal School 12-22.

The defeat was a disappointment to the team, but the game was a good one. The defeat was a disappointment to the team, but the game was a good one.

OPPORTUNITY OFFERED TO STUDY THE STARS

Six Lessons Will Appear in The Gazette During the Coming Week.—Should Interest All.

How to locate the stars, how to measure the altitude of the sun and moon in degrees, how to ascertain the weight of the earth, these are some of the interesting problems taken up in a correspondence study course offered by the University of Wisconsin Extension Division. A popular and untechnical study of the sciences offered in a course of 20 assignments.

The first part of the study is historical. It is the story of astronomy from the earliest times to the present. Some attention is given to the ancient astronomy—discoveries by the Egyptians, Chaldeans and other ancient peoples—the Ptolemaic system of the universe. More attention is given to the modern astronomy, born with Copernicus and embracing what is known of the size, distance, mass and motion of the heavenly bodies. The history of astronomy is noted. This study is a fascinating one. The study is a correspondence study course offered by the University of Wisconsin Extension Division. A popular and untechnical study of the sciences offered in a course of 20 assignments.

Special directions are furnished for outdoor study of the sky in every season; how to identify and locate the planets, the principal stars, clusters, and constellations with the unaided eye and with the telescope. Among the special subjects treated are: the constellations; celestial motions and measurements; longitude and latitude in the sky, eclipses, time-keeping, instruments, spectrum analysis, the moon, the sun, the planets, the comets, star maps, celestial mechanics, growth and decay in the heavens.

Outlines for club study are also arranged for groups of people interested in the subject. Everyone who aspires to liberal education and to largeness of intellectual vision, should consider the great value of some systematic study in astronomy. No other science is more stimulating to the healthy imagination, and to largeness of intellectual vision. Six lessons on the stars will appear in the Gazette, one each night during the coming week.

SIDE LIGHTS on THE CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT

Did you ever notice how in a menagerie of any of the big shows that the one cage where you would always find a crowd and an interest is the monkey cage? For something. Many times they are quarreling among themselves, and if the cage is particularly wise one in thinks has a kind favor or might do him a favor, he will immediately commence telling him his story, and how he is tired of being shut up there with a lot of monkeys, many of them which he says do not know anything, and would just as soon be like to be out and he would not run away and he would go back in the cage any time when you said the word.

These are the stories that I have often thought I have heard from the monkey cage.

The second cage to the right of the main entrance of the Forepaugh show was the monkey cage, which contained anywhere from 10 to 30 monkeys, and any time when I was out in front of the cage, there was one little fellow that would always stick out his nose and plead for me to take him out.

I asked the man in charge one day if he thought he would leave the menagerie if he was taken out. "No," said he, "I have had him out many a time, and he immediately opened the door and handed the little fellow to me. I took him to the candy stand where I bought a hand-corn, and we found a quiet corner in the menagerie, and a couple of stones, and I went to work cracking the nuts.

And all this time the little fellow was telling me that he was thankful to be out and want a treat. It was to get the nuts, and seemed to be everything that I was doing for him. But in a few minutes I stopped cracking the nuts, and he commenced yelling for more, and he picked up a nut, and laid it on the cage and he handed him the small one. In a second he grabbed it and broke the nut as well as anyone, and this put him in the game. But after half an hour I took him back to the cage and he seemed to be satisfied, possibly thinking that he kicked or found fault with me, and got out again. But this time I would go in the menagerie after this he was watching for me and would yell his head off for me to take him out of the cage. This I did several times, but he would not go into the big show and had no time to visit with him. I would go around the outside of the menagerie so that he might not see me.

But the wisest monkey I ever saw was one in the Zoological Gardens at Frankfurt, Germany. His name is Basso, and he is the world's most intelligent monkey. He is more than nearly like yours and mine than any of any animal the world ever has known.

Those who know him well insist that he has the ability to speak to be human and possess many qualities of character that might well be copied by his human companions. He is polite, gentlemanly and fastidious. He is well worth careful study.

Few travelers go to Frankfurt, Germany, without paying a visit to the chimpanzee quarter at the zoological gardens. He is so highly prized that he is not kept in the monkey house with the other animals. He has a large room which he occupies with a couple of companions. While they teach Basso much, he teaches them more. Basso was taken to Germany from the wilds of Africa when he was still a baby. Before he was a year old his caretaker noticed that he was endowed with great common intelligence, and he was given a special teacher. In less than a month he objected to having his food served on the floor or out of doors. He insisted on having his food served at table, and on having his food served as his keeper got his.

In a few weeks he became so fastidious that he refused to take his food up in his fingers and would only eat when he was given a plate to eat from and a cup from which to drink. In another month he demanded a bell so he could let the waiter know when he had finished one dish and wanted another, as his insisted on having his meals served in courses.

When he was taken into the gardens for his daily airings he noticed that many of the children had small bicycles, and he threatened to take one of their away unless he was given one of his own. He was often riding about at breakneck speed, giving his keeper a lively chase. He had to go a long distance every day to get his milk, and he refused to fetch it unless he could ride his machine.

His keeper, Basso, will stop now and then to shake hands with a group of little folks. He loves children greatly, and he is very careful not to hurt them. Returning from his daily airing, he will jump down from his bicycle and carry it up two flights of steps alone.

He soon noticed that the children who came to see him wore clothes, and he refused to go out until he was given a suit of clothes, a cap and a sun shade to keep off the heat in hot weather. In a short time he was dressing and undressing up his clothes with as much care as a well-trained child. He knows all the tricks of the children, such as tossing pillows, making somersaults and hiding from his keeper.

He is very friendly with his keeper and shakes hands with plenty of everything but speak, he makes himself understood by shaking his head, pointing to things, and by other gestures that are a part of the sign language.

The Frontier Days, at San Francisco, next season, may be the biggest event in the city. The plans call for at least 1,000 Indians to take part in the events, and Col. Cody will be superintending the arrangements, with a fund of $200,000 to be spent on it. They'll have to go some in Frisco to beat this.

On October 8th, 1860 Andrew G. Curtin, of Bellefonte, Pa., was elected governor of that state, and again in the fall of '88 he was re-elected for three years more, which carried him all through the war of the rebellion as governor of that state. And for that reason Andy Curtin as well as his name is known in Pennsylvania. Adam Forepaugh and Andy Curtin had been friends from boyhood days and when along in '84 we showed in Bellefonte, the ex-governor's house in Bellefonte, he sent me to the Curtin home in the morning with a dozen tickets for the center of the hall. And in the afternoon flags were drawn around a dozen or more seats which the governor and his friends were to occupy.

When was stationed at the main entrance and when the governor and his party arrived the band rose up and played, "Hail to the Chief," and his party, and everyone in Bellefonte and that part of the country for Andy Curtin seemed to be a favorite everywhere.

After the show that night the ex-governor gave a dinner to a select party of fifteen of his gentlemen friends, and Adam Forepaugh and myself were to be among the guests. But if there was any one thing that Adam Forepaugh was not versed in it was social events. And then too, he was afraid he would be called on to make a little speech or tell a story. He could see no other way out of it, but to be sick.

"Now," he said to me, "Dave, you must go and carry my regards and tell them that you are there to represent me. I said, 'You mean to misrepresent you.'"

"Well," he said, "fix that up as you please, but no dinner parties in mine."

The governor gave an elegant luncheon and smoker, and also had two or three good story tellers and I stayed as long as I dared to and not miss the train. And while Adam Forepaugh would do anything within reason for a friend, he would not allow them to repay him by being the guest of honor at a dinner.

WINTER GARDEN PLAY HAS EXCELLENT CAST

"Maid in America" to Appear Before New York Audience After Short Run at Buffalo.—Dramatic Chatter.

(By Beau Rialto.) New York, Feb. 13.—First-nighters will weigh and judge the new Winter Garden production Monday night. It is "Maid in America" with quite the ever assembled of prominent principals, including Nora Bayes, Edna Dazie, Minerva Cloverdale, Blossom Seeley and nearly two hundred others. "Maid in America" was tried on Buffalo theatergoers this week and comes to the Garden polished and edged down.

Shakespeare's characters are again stalking through New York. Gothamites will have two more weeks of Robert Mantell, at the Forty-Second street theatre. Mantell, the critics, is head and shoulders above those in this supporting company, but his production have won favor with the most rabid of the avon bard's admirers. School teachers are journeying in from Jersey and upstate and the audiences are mostly out of town patrons.

The Punch and Judy theatre has just put out its second play. Mr. Mrs. Charles Hopkins, who preside over the destinies of this exotic institution, presented Alfred Suro's comedy, "The Clever Ones," with London actors in the cast. Suro is in three acts the story of intellectual snobishness on the part of a girl out of college who feels there is no person in the world for her to marry outside of an anarchist.

The play "Polygamy," at the Park theatre, now in its third month in New York, is to be made the subject of sermons in many New York churches next Sunday, February 22, which has been christened "Polygamy Sunday" by a number of pastors. Harvey O'Higgins and Miss Ford, authors of the play, have been invited to speak on that day.

Someone has clipped Charles Dillingham to a new stunt. "Chin Chin," which by long odds, has drawn in more coin than any other attraction in New York this winter, is going to Australia rolled and canned. Australia rights to the production have been secured by the sending of paintings of the scene and a mass of other junk. Dillingham has had the production filmed and photographic records made of all the musical selections. These are going to the antipodes.

Among the attractions which New York will see next month as "The Phylis Nelson-Terry" is to appear at the Maxine Elliott theatre, on March 1.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Coming to the Myers Theatre on Tuesday evening, Feb. 16, Billy Watson's famous Beef Trust Beauties, The Parisian Widow.

With the scenes at a famous Parisian summer school and the plot of the fun, Bouche and Irisman are exceedingly funny. Interspersed with these funny comedians are the latest songs and dances executed by pretty girls in changing costumes. Rosina, a noted French danseuse will be seen in Oriental dances.

BULGARS HAVE HAD MANY STRUGGLES

Country Has Suffered Hardships and Misery Against Overwhelming Odds.

The history of the Bulgarian nation has been that of one difficulty after another until the Bulgars have become inured to trouble and have learned that which now seems to lie before them. Their whole life as a people has been a continuous succession of struggles against overwhelming odds, struggles in which they have suffered the greatest misery and hardship and in which they have never failed to show a sublime steadfastness and endurance, according to a study of this national geographical society by James B. Houshner.

Bulgaria, probably more than any other Balkan land, this winter says, has felt the weight of Turkish rule and oppression. It lies in the central part of the Balkan peninsula, near to the reach of the great Turkish military centers of the former days, Adrianople and Constantinople, and embraces a rich agricultural country from which the Ottoman overlords have drawn heavy returns. Due to this value of its soils and to its handy position, Bulgaria has been held more than any other Christian nation in this ill-fated territory.

The Bulgarians were the last to recover from the Turkish oblivion. They had been sunk for hundreds of years by their Asiatic conquerors, Mr. Houshner continues, and in their efforts to find their freedom and union for their race, they found themselves not only confronted by the power of Islam, but with the hostility of all surrounding their writings under the Turkish boot. Their added religious oppression and economic oppressions to the efforts of the Turks, Russia has repeatedly loomed threateningly before their horizon, while Romania and Servia, both earlier free of the Islamic domination, have added to the persistent little nation's troubles.

Out of their centuries of suffering and dogged efforts the Bulgarians have developed a fine determination, a heroic love of race and country which shows no trace of individual sacrifice in its behalf. They have tenacity, they have shrewdness, and they have a familiarity with desperate situations, which, if it has not bred contempt, at least has bred a courage for whatever trouble fate may have in store.

It was not until 1885 that Eastern Roumania revolted from Turkish rule and united with Northern Bulgaria, and it was not until October, 1908, that Prince Ferdinand proclaimed Bulgaria an independent kingdom. Thirty years passed after the Bulgarian war for independence before their freedom was officially recognized in Europe. Virile, laborious, thrifty, persevering, courageous, and anxious for progress, the Bulgarians are daring to dream great dreams for their little country, and today, as ever, their immediate future seems to be beset by all manner of difficulties.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE APOLLO.

"The Ghost Breaker" Monday. The Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co. prides itself not only on having the very best famous dramatic works for its screen productions, but also on having the most recent hits. "The Ghost Breaker," which has now been completed and in which H. B. Warner plays his original theatre role, was playing the Lyceum Theatre in New York City all last season. The photo play will be presented at the Apollo on Monday.

"The Ghost Breaker" is truly remarkable as a drama in that it brings all the dash and spirit of adventure ordinarily associated with the "romantic" school of plays into the surroundings of modern life. It supplies the love for excitement which is a natural attribute of all amusement seekers, and at the same time it is so localized

Jean and Rita Stanwood appears as the Spanish Princess. Others in the original cast are Theodore Roberts, Betty Johnson, Jode Mullaly, Horace B. Carpenter, Jeanne McPherson, Mabel Van Buren, Billy Elmer, Dick La Strange, Fred Montague, Lillian Littlefield, J. N. Burton and J. W. Johnson.

AT THE APOLLO.

"Seats of the Mighty." Lionel Barrymore will be seen at the Apollo Tuesday in Sir Gilbert Parker's "The Seats of the Mighty."

Robert Moray, a young Englishman, to whom have been entrusted certain letters of Madame du Barry, mistress of Louis XV, goes to join Major Washington's expedition against the French. Moray is captured by the French, and is taken to Quebec by orders of Doltair, in supreme command over "New France," who had previously been dispatched by La Pompadour, rival of du Barry in the affections of the King, in an effort to secure the du Barry letters.

Moray and Doltair fall in love with the beautiful Alise Duvarney, who pledges her faith to Moray, even though he is falsely accused of being a spy. Doltair, baffled plans to discredit Moray in the eyes of Alise, and contrives that he fight a duel with Alise's brother, Juste. Juste is badly wounded and Moray, on the orders of Doltair, is thrown into prison.

Doltair, still repulsed by Alise, who remains faithful to Moray, and unsuccessful in his effort to steal the du Barry letters, causes Moray to be shot. The morning of the execution arrives, but Alise pretends to accept the suit of Doltair, and he orders a stay of execution. Moray escapes with the Moray succeeds in joining the English force under General Wolfe, who is moving toward Quebec, and is able to point out to the "General" a sure means of access to the apparently impenetrable city.

The city is stormed and captured, and Doltair, trapped in company with the wicked Intendant, Bigot, meets his death in the destruction of the latter's palace. Wolfe is victorious, and Captain Moray and Alise are happily reunited.

AT THE APOLLO.

John Emerson in "The Conspiracy." An unusual film attraction, John Emerson in his great dramatic success, "The Conspiracy," written by the star of the Apollo on Wednesday of next week. This production marks the initial film offering of Charles Frohman to the motion-picture public, following the exhibition effected last summer between that noted theatrical producer and the Famous Players Film Co. who are responsible for the production of this four-part Paramount feature.

unusual "conspiracy," which attracted unusual attention at the time of its stage presentation in New York. It is a modern detective-comedy-drama, with an abundance of laughs and thrills, and of the plot is one of the tensest that has been presented in recent dramatic literature, and so skillfully woven that the suspense and interest never lag throughout the entire production. Taking a baffling crime as their basic theme, the authors have constructed a drama that is over-whelming in its vital appeal to all the emotions. The dramatic events of the plot occur in rapid succession, and the emotions of the audience are played upon in a delightful and masterly manner, until the mystery is solved, the culprits placed where it belongs, and the culmination of the tender romance that is incidental to the crime drama of the drama happily indicated.

No recent detective drama has contained such a variety of interest and appeal, or such a consistently upheld intensity of action and incident. The interest of the drama accumulates as the action progresses, and the thrilling climax is developed smoothly and factually.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

The tragic result of a wife's desperate attempt to keep up appearances at any cost, no matter how drastic the means, is told in "Today," a sensational drama which will be seen at Myers Theatre two days, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 20-21, matinee Saturday. This remarkable play, which has the record this past season for being the only drama that ran an entire season in New York, is a nicely balanced combination of tragedy, pathos and humor, dealing with a subject uppermost in the public mind, the evil of that worship of wealth which is one of the most rampant vices of the present day.

From many a pulpit wives and husbands, as well as the younger set, have been urged to witness a performance of this play in order that the powerful lesson it conveys may be hammered home. The management of "Today" has on file hundreds of letters of the most enthusiastic commendation of the play, and it is partly through this endorsement of the clergy that the play has sustained its record for tremendous receipts and continuous success. In the company that will be seen here in "Today" are Eleanor Miller, Hallett Thompson, Marie Reichardt, Anton Asher, Phoebe Bates, Arthur J. Wood, Marie Dantes, Sara Hubbard and Frank Stone.

What he did and how he did it form the plot of an up to date romance of real life that holds the interest from first chapter to last.

CHAPTER I.
"MOTHER," said Sam Powell, "let's go back to the farm this year."
"Well, I do say!" exclaimed Mrs. Powell, smiling. "What ever put that notion into your head, Sam? I thought you'd had enough of farming."
Sam Powell and his mother and a sister a year younger than Sam lived on the outskirts of town and made a scanty living from the sale of butter and milk afforded by two cows and eggs and poultry produced on an acre lot. In addition to this income, the family also had the rent from a little farm of twenty acres, which was situated four miles from town. The amount of the rent, however, was so small as to be hardly worth mentioning. Year after year the land became poorer, and slothful and ignorant tenants let the weeds take the crops.
Sam was sixteen, and he and his sister, Florence, attended the public school in town. Their father had been dead four years. Before that time the family had lived on the farm just mentioned. But Mr. Powell had been no more successful than his neighbors or the tenants. Not that he hadn't worked hard, for there had been no harder worker in the community than Edward Powell. But something was lacking. He had been unsuccessful, and the family had suffered many privations and hardships.
At first the area of the farm had been 150 acres, but as the farmer got deeper and deeper in debt he sold it off, a piece at a time, till there were left only the house and twenty acres. Considering that there was no possibility of making a living on this amount of ground, Mr. Powell would have sold it also had he been able to find a buyer. No buyer being at hand, though, the disheartened farmer moved his family to town and left it. Two months later he was stricken with fever and died. Then the struggle for a living fell on Mrs. Powell and the two children, for Sam and Florence were large enough to be of much help to their mother.

So it was with much surprise that Mrs. Powell heard Sam express the wish to go back to the farm. They lived hard now, it is true, but then it had been worse. Her own memories of their days on the farm were anything but pleasant, and she knew that Sam had not forgotten. Much as she liked stock and growing things, she didn't want to go back to that life again.
It was Saturday afternoon, and Sam had just come in from town. His eyes were bright with the new idea he had in mind.
"It's this way, mother," said Sam, replying to Mrs. Powell's question and comment. "Since I've been going to high school I've learned a whole lot of new things about farming. They are not new things, either—the simplest facts about agriculture. Our teacher says they are the A B C's of the business, but I never heard of them till our class began studying 'The Elements of Agriculture.'"
"That's what they call book farming," said Mrs. Powell. "And how farmers would laugh at you if they heard you talking about it."
"Some farmers might, but not all of them," Sam replied. "Bill Googe and Miles Fagan would, because they don't know anything about it. That's just how it is, mother. The ones that make fun of scientific farming don't know what they're talking about."
"Well, Miles Fagan is a hard worker, and so was your father. I don't believe anybody ever worked harder or could do more than them two."
"It's not all in hard work, though. The main thing is in knowing how to work. We are just now learning how. Some don't know how yet and won't try to learn. I wasn't father's fault that he failed, because no one knew anything about the new farming then. But that's why father failed, and Fagan is farming just like father did. He's got the chance to learn better, but won't do it. Bill Googe won't work much, of course, but he'd do a lot better if he tried the new way."
"What is this new way? I thought farming was farming," said Mrs. Powell.

"It would take a long time to explain it all," said Sam, "but it mostly depends on what kind of soil you have, how you plow it and how you plant and cultivate your crops."
"Did you learn all this out of the book on farming?" asked Mrs. Powell.
"Well, I've learned a good deal from the book," Sam explained, "but not all I know. The government has appointed an agent for this country, and he is going to spend part of his time here next year instructing the farmers and work on hand when we come out we'll help you out so that you can take a half day off."

"That's the idea," seconded Andrew. "If we come out Saturday morning, say, and work till noon you could take the afternoon off, couldn't you?"
"Well, I should think I could," said Sam. "But I wouldn't like to have you work for me for nothing."
"Oh, don't worry," said Joe. "We'll get paid. We'll take it out in water-melons."
"I didn't know that you liked to work so well," said Sam. "You might as well go out with me next Saturday. We're not going to move until next spring, but I must mend the fences and get the ground in shape."
"Sure, we'll go," they all said. "Where'll we find you and what time shall we start?"
"I'll be at home," Sam told them. "Come about 7 o'clock, and we'll drive out in the spring wagon."
Before Saturday came round Sam could not refrain from hunting up his new friend, the government agent, to tell him that he was going out on the little farm for that year at least.
The agent, Mr. Burns, was delighted at the news.
"Well," he said, "I'm glad to hear that. Miles Fagan is, as they say, from Missouri. He must be shown. It's just a waste of breath to talk to him. He won't listen to anything. I tried to get him to plant just one acre and cultivate it according to our methods. But he said he didn't have time for any such foolishness. He'd been farming long enough, he said, to know something about it."
"I tried to persuade him to allow his son, Bob, to join the Boys' Corn Club and plant an acre of corn to be cultivated under my direction. But he wouldn't do that either, and in fact, he talked rather insultingly to me. Of course if it was just himself that was concerned I wouldn't bother any more with him. A man like that doesn't deserve much. But we can't afford to resent such talk from anybody, Sam. We just consider that it is because he doesn't understand and let it go. Besides, it's the welfare of the whole country that we are looking after. We want to make better farmers out of the boys. We want Bob Fagan to be a more successful farmer than his father has been, and you see, we can't do that without convincing his father so that he will let us teach Bob."
"Now, your farm and Fagan's join, don't they?"
"Yes, sir," Sam replied; "there's just a fence between his field and ours."
"Do you know what he is going to plant next to your field?"
"Oh, yes. He always plants corn there. Hasn't had anything else there for five years."
"The very thing!" exclaimed Mr. Burns. "Now, I want you to come down to the courthouse next Monday morning. We are going to have a meeting of the Boys' Corn Club then, and I want you to join. You know, there is $500 to be given in prizes in this country. There is a chance for you to win about $250 on a contest acre of corn."
"That is a whole lot of money," said Sam, "and I am going to try hard to win the first prize, though my land is pretty well run down."
"You can fix that all right," Mr. Burns assured him. "Of course you may not get the whole field as well fertilized as it should be, but you can get the acre for corn in good condition. And I want you to lay off that acre just across the fence from Fagan's. We'll certainly show him something this year about growing corn."
"That's the poorest land on the place," said Sam.
"So much the better," Mr. Burns assured him. "Fagan can't say then that your crop is due to better land."
"Oh, no, he can't say that, for his land is much richer than mine! Mine has been neglected so long! I'll sure have to go to work on it if I'm going to make a good showing this year."
"Yes, that's right. Get it fertilized and plowed deep as soon as you can. This is January. It should have been plowed three months ago. How much land have you?"
"Twenty acres, but five of it are in pasture. I'm going to hire a man to plow the field, as I have only one horse."
"That would be best," said Mr. Burns, "but you must keep an account of all the work done on the contest acre, for you know it will have to be figured in on the cost of the corn."
"I'll do that," Sam agreed. "In fact, I'm going to keep books on everything—crops and stock too. I want to know when I make or lose."
"You're on the right track," Mr. Burns replied. "It is just as necessary to keep books on the farm as it is in any other business, for farming is a business, Sam, and a good business, too, if you do it in a business-like way."

That's what they call book farming, Sam.

ROAD MACHINERY WAS PURCHASED BY COUNTY
Pressure Oiler, Horse Power Revolver, Sweep and Road Roller Bought Friday.
When the new six hundred gallon pressure road oiler, the nine-horse power revolving road sweeper and the ten-ton gasoline road roller arrived Friday, the Rock county will have one of the best equipments for building country roads of any county in the state. The new machinery was ordered yesterday by the committee of the county board who met with representatives of the various competing companies at the court house. Delegates from Green and LaPorte county boards were also present and they purchased oilers and sweepers from the Good Roads Machinery company. The new road roller is a two cylinder one, weighing ten tons and running on gasoline. It cost $2500. All three equipments will be delivered April 15th. This gives Rock county five rollers for road work, flushing outfit, four crushers equipped with conveyor attachments and men who are thoroughly acquainted with the work to be done and Commissioner of Highways Moore says it will be the fault of the county if excellent roads are not laid before another winter comes around.

HOW THE SUPPLY OF GRAIN IS DIVIDED

MEANS MUCH IN FINAL OUT-COME OF THE PRESENT EURO-PEAN STRUGGLE.

FOODSTUFF DEMANDED

In Furnishing the Sinews of War For the Contesting Armies and Feeding Those Left at Home.

"The total standard grain crops of the world, which, in the order of their volume are oats, wheat, corn, rye, and barley, reached a grand total production of sixteen billion bushels in 1913. This is enough to fill a bin a thousand feet high, a thousand feet wide and nearly four miles long, or practically enough to fill six dishes like that dug by the Americans at Panama.

"Of this total yield, the nations at war exclusive of their colonial possessions, produced approximately one-half, or 7,840,000,000 bushels; and the United States produced 4,548,000,000 bushels. In other words, considerably more than three-fourths of the world's production of these crops grow within the countries immediately at war and in the United States."

"Thus begins a statement prepared today by the National Geographic Society, giving the salient figures of the world's food and stock production, and the part played by nations at war therein. The statement then continues:

"In the production of these crops the Triple Entente group of countries have a large excess over Germany, Austria and Turkey. The former group produced 6,178,000,000 bushels in 1913, while the latter produced 2,662,000,000 bushels—nearly two for one. Considered in relation to the number of mouths to be fed, however, the result is somewhat less disproportionate, for, omitting Japan, which figures very little either as a consumer or producer of these crops, it is found that the per capita yield in Germany, Austria-Hungary and Turkey is 20.2 bushels per capita as compared with 20.1 bushels in the Anglo-Russo-French group.

"Potatoes form another important food product in the world's dietary. The total yield in 1913 having been larger than any other single crop used principally for human food—5,398,000,000 bushels. The nations now at war, again omitting their colonial possessions, produced approximately four-fifths of this grand total, or 4,225,000,000 bushels. The Entente group of nations produced 2,296,000,000 bushels while the Teutonic group produced 2,527,000,000 bushels—19.1 bushels per capita in the case of the latter, and 8.9 bushels in the case of the former.

"The world's supply of cattle aggregated 437,000,000 head, of which 121,000,000 head belong to the belligerent nations, or a little less than one-third. Here again, in numbers the Allies surpass the Germans and their companions at arms, having 83,740,000 head as compared with the latter's 47,386,000 head. Considered upon a per capita basis the balance is in Germany's favor, with 36 cattle per hundred of population in the case of the latter compared with 32 per hundred in the case of the Entente group.

"The world's supply of hogs in 1913 aggregated 136,000,000 head, of which 55,000,000 head were to be found in the countries now participating in the European war, or nearly two-fifths. Germany and her associates had one-fourth more in absolute numbers than their enemies and nearly two and a half times as many in proportion to population. The Entente group of nations has 11 hogs for each hundred people and the Teutonic group 27.

"In the case of sheep the number shown by the tabulations for the world in 1913 totaled 621,000,000. Of these 216,000,000 were in the countries now at war, with 129,000,000 in the countries of the Entente group, and 55,000,000 on the German side. The Entente group has 50 sheep for every hundred of population and the Teutonic group 60.

"The world's total supply of horses is shown to be 104,000,000. Of these the Entente group had last year 42,724,000, and the Germanic group 10,724,000, or approximately only one hundred horses for each hundred people, as compared with 8 per hundred for the former."

The accompanying tables show at a glance the relative standing of the United States, the Entente group of nations, and the Teutonic forces, in the production of foodstuffs and the ownership of horses:

EVEN ARMY AUTO DRIVERS MUST OBEY SPEED RULES

(Correspondence Associated Press.) London, Feb. 13.—The municipal authorities in various parts of England have decided that army automobiles are not immune from the ordinary regulations as to fast or reckless driving, and the arrest of military chauffeurs is becoming more and more frequent.

In one of the recent cases, a signal corps officer, Lieutenant Godfrey Wigglesworth, was arrested on the testimony of a stop-watch which showed that he was driving at a rate of 46 miles an hour over a busy suburban highway. The police produced evidence showing sixteen previous convictions for fast driving.

The Magistrate sharply censured the military authorities for allowing the Lieutenant an automobile, but let him off with a fine of $25.

LONDON'S FUR AUCTION POSTPONED AS WAR HAS KILLED THE TRAPPING

(Correspondence Associated Press.) London, Feb. 12.—Owing to the scarcity of offerings, the great January fur sales usually held in London were abandoned. It has been decided however, to hold the March auction as usual.

London is one of the world's greatest fur markets.

YPRES IMPORTANT TO THE ALLIED FORCES

Once Important Community But Has Gradually Gone Back As Other Cities Grew.

"Ypres, beaten back from the zenith which it attained around the year 1300, ever dropping over in the scale of importance, is today apparently facing the last few scenes of its tragic decline. For weeks Ypres has figured prominently in the war dispatches, as Germans and allies have rolled in alternate destructive waves over its site," says a statement issued by the National Geographic Society today.

"Ypres was formerly the capital of West Flanders. It is situated 35 miles south of Ostend, on the Yperlee. The town lies in the midst of a fruitful region, which is drained swamp and marshland. Since the flooding of the country as a war measure, the swampy land is today as it was in the Middle Ages.

"In the 14th century, Ypres rivaled Bruges and Ghent. It was one of Europe's great cloth-weaving centers, a city of vast wealth, and one known everywhere through the excellence and popularity of its products. In its prime it was a city of 200,000. Prior to the war, its population numbered 17,000.

"The cloth-making industry of Ypres dates back to 1073. As this industry grew, and skillful weavers, dyers and finishers were gathered to the city, Ypres came to occupy in the woolen and mixed-fabric world much the same place that today Nottingham takes for the manufacture of lace curtains or Lyons for the manufacture of silk. It is said that by the first quarter of the 13th century, Ypres had 4,000 looms going constantly.

"On July 1, 1302, it was their 'red-coated' contingent that turned victory to the banners of the Flemings in their battle with the French under the walls of Courtrai, twelve miles east of Ypres. The Flemish army numbered 20,000 citizens of Ghent, Bruges and Ypres, and the French 7,000 knights and 40,000 foot-soldiers.

"Several popular risings, the fearful plague of 1347, and then a wild bacchanal of wars blighted the hopes of Ypres, sapping its strength, destroyed its industry, killed off and scared away its people, ruined its homes, and, finally, broke its spirit. The re-establishment of an independent Belgium found it hopelessly beaten in the struggle for prosperity and prestige.

"Cotton, linen and woolen cloths and lace are still manufactured—or were before the war—in Ypres, but it is now just one of a multitude of textile towns, and the world today will take little notice of the manner of its passing."

TRY THIS FOR NEURALGIA.

Thousands of people keep on suffering with Neuralgia because they do not know what to do for it. Neuralgia is a pain in the nerves. What you want to do is to soothe the nerve itself. Apply Sloan's Liniment to the surface over the painful part—do not rub it in. Sloan's Liniment penetrates very quickly to the sore, irritated nerve and allays the inflammation. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25 cents at any druggist and have it in the house—against Colds, Sore and Swollen Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica and like ailments. Your money back if not satisfied but it does give almost instant relief.

BIRDS GAVE WARNING OF BIG NAVAL FIGHT

Pheasants on East Coast of England Made Great Stir When Engagement Was With German Ships.

(Correspondence Associated Press.) London, Feb. 12.—Folks on the East Coast have no need of look-outs to warn them of a battle in the North Sea. Even when they can not hear the gun-firing they have auguries of the battle in the pheasants, in which the country thereabout abounds.

Hours before the people of London were aware of it, many East Coast residents knew there had been an engagement on the morning of Sunday, Jan. 24. Almost immediately after firing had begun the pheasants made a great stir and fuss, and those old residents able to read the signs realized that the sensitive birds were aware of distant cannonading. Similar demonstrations by the birds had been made on previous occasions.

The Rev. W. M. L. Evans, writing from Saxby Rectory, Lincolnshire, on the East Coast, says: "It may be of interest to Admiral Sir David Beatty to know that a large portion of the population of this remote parish, in spite of the censor, knew all about his doings on Sunday morning at an early hour."

"Our worthy clerk met me with the announcement, 'There he rare goings on in the North Sea the morn.' 'Why?' I inquired.

"The pheasants is all over the place with their fuss," was the reply. 'Many villagers,' adds the Rector, 'confirm his statement as to the excited condition of the birds.'"

The London Times, investigating the matter, finds that pheasants where along the coast have displayed the same uneasiness during naval engagements. Their sensitive organization catches the faintest distant tremors, when the human ear is not disturbed.

TOMMY ATKINS GIVEN A "WEE BIT" OF RUM

British Medical Authorities Declare Small Amount of Liquor is Necessary for Soldiers.

(Correspondence Associated Press.) London, Feb. 12.—A daily ration of rum is still part of the regular supplies of British soldiers in the actual fighting line, but it is doled out under the head of "medicine," and the quantity allowed is only three table-spoonfuls with rations for two days.

"This small ration of alcohol was considered indispensable by the army physicians," writes a correspondent to the Liverpool Post. "They considered it necessary that the soldier exposed to the cold for hours in the trenches should have some stimulant available, and experience taught that the 'drop' of rum, taken either straight or in his tea, was the thing."

In some quarters fears have been expressed that the distribution of an alcoholic stimulant to the soldiers might lead some of the men to form permanent habits of drinking, but army leaders replied that the quantity handed out was too small to justify any such fear, and moreover, it is given to men only when they are exposed positions on outpost duty.

As a matter of fact, everything is done to ensure the sobriety of the troops. When the armies are either advancing or retreating through a town all the saloons are closed, and the same measure is taken wherever the troops are in occupation of a town. Old campaigners declare that their daily spoonful of rum is a safeguard against certain diseases, such as cholera.

As a matter of fact, notwithstanding the army's purchases of rum, the total importations of this beverage have fallen off more than half since the beginning of the war. Imports explain this by saying that the rum makers in Jamaica and the West Indies are not making as much as formerly, because a greater profit is to be realized just now from the sale of sugar, although the price of rum has advanced about seventy per cent.
